* Please refer to the fund supplement and scheme particulars for a detailed description of fees and fund facts.

 The Total Expense Ratios (TERs) are the percentages of the net asset value of the class of the Financial Product incurred as expenses relating to the administration of the Financial Product. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. A current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TERs. The TER to 30 June 2017 is based on data for the period from 30 June 2016 to 30 June 2017 and the financial year-end TER is based on data for the financial year-end to 30 June 2017. Cost ratios are calculated using historical actual and/or estimated data and are provided solely as an indication/guide as to the annual expenses/costs that could be incurred. These ratios do not represent any current/actual charges or fees.

 Current asset allocation figures reflect the strategic classification of the collective investment schemes (or similar schemes) held by the Fund and do not look through to the underlying holdings of such schemes.

■ Market commentary

While the underlying economic trends remained broadly favourable and constructive for risk assets, a number of factors served to disturb the calm in markets in August and produce a spike in volatility. Three events in particular caused investor concern: firstly, the serious escalation in the North Korean nuclear weapons crisis; second, one of the strongest hurricanes ever to reach the US mainland, the immediate effect of which was to take out 20% of US refining capacity; and finally the now familiar problem of the US reaching its debt limit set by Congress.

While initially unnerving investors, each of these events was ultimately kept in perspective. Although North Korea and the US are led by unpredictable and volatile characters, investors have made the reasonable assumption that outright nuclear conflict would be so catastrophic that neither party will take that option. The windstorms, while extremely costly and damaging in the short term, will pass and the costs of rebuilding will be readily absorbed. And while the debt ceiling problem will create lots of noise and fractious deal making between Congress and the President, a deal will be done.

Although these events caused short term wobbles in markets, they are unlikely to cause a sharp and sustained reversal in trend. What has remained key to investors is the global economy and here the news has remained almost universally positive: GDP in the key economies all showed good growth in Q2 (US +3.0%, Eurozone +2.6%, Japan +4.0% and China 7.0%); leading indicators, including consumer confidence, business surveys and capital expenditure plans, as well as strong employment growth, all point to a continuation of growth at a sustainable pace; and inflation remains remarkably subdued.

Equity markets ended the period down -0.2%, with emerging markets continuing their outperformance, up 2.6% to take their year to date returns to +29.9%. The more risk averse sentiment and downward surprises on inflation pushed government bonds higher, with global government bonds returning 1.9%. Gold was a notable beneficiary of the flare up of global tensions, up 4.8% in the month, taking its year to date returns to 13.7%.

After their strong performance so far this year markets are entering a more difficult period. Although corporate profits have been strong, the rise in share prices over the past year has outstripped earnings and valuations have moved somewhat higher. The global economy appears well set for continuing growth but political tensions have risen and at the same time we are entering a period when the Fed and ECB are likely to announce some tightening of policy and reduced liquidity injections. This leaves markets vulnerable to a correction. However we believe it will be important to stay invested and periodic bouts of weakness in markets will present buying opportunities.

■ Risk warnings and important notes

Collective investments are generally medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go down as well as up and past performance is not necessarily a guide to the future.

Collective investments are traded at ruling prices. Commission and incentives may be paid and, if so, would be included in the overall costs. All performance is calculated on a total return basis, after deduction of all fees and commissions and in US dollar terms. Forward pricing is used.

The Fund invests in other collective investments, which levy their own charges. This could result in a higher fee structure for the Fund.

Fluctuations in the value of the underlying funds, the income from them and changes in interest rates mean that the value of the Fund and any income arising from it may fall, as well as rise, and is not guaranteed.

Deductions of charges and expenses mean that you may not get back the amount you invested.

The fees charged within the Fund and by the managers of the underlying funds are not guaranteed and may change in the future.

Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies, even in developed markets, investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt.

Notwithstanding ongoing monitoring of the underlying funds within the Fund, there can be no assurance that the performance of the funds will achieve their stated objectives.

The Fund will contain shares or units in underlying funds that invest internationally. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations.

Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information.

The Fund may contain shares or units in underlying funds that do not permit dealing every day. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments other than on the fund's dealing days.

No borrowing will be undertaken by the Fund except for the purpose of meeting short term liquidity requirements. Borrowings will not exceed 10% of the net asset value of the Fund. For such purpose, the securities of the Fund may be pledged. No scrip borrowing will be allowed.

While derivative instruments may be used for hedging purposes, the risk remains that the relevant instrument may not necessarily fully correlate to the investments in the Fund and accordingly not fully reflect changes in the value of the investment, giving rise to potential net losses.

Forward contracts are neither traded on exchanges nor standardised. Principals dealing in these markets are also not required to make markets in the currencies they trade, with the result that these markets may experience periods of illiquidity. Banks and dealers will normally act as principals and usually each transaction is negotiated on an individual basis.

The Manager has the right to close the Fund to new investors, in order to manage it more efficiently, in accordance with its mandate.

Investment in the Fund may not be suitable for all investors. Investors should obtain advice from their financial adviser before proceeding with an investment.
